

Edition 2023

Q&A

Employment in the Netherlands

A guidebook for employers
starting or having operations in the Netherlands

loyensloeff.com

Q&A Employment in the Netherlands

Contents

Introduction	3
Checklist - Employment in the Netherlands	5
1. Immigration law	9
2. Labour law	14
3. Wage withholding tax	21
4. Expatriate tax regime: the 30%-ruling	26
5. Social security	31
6. Pension	37
7. Other aspects to consider	40
About Loyens & Loeff	43
Our offices	44
Contact us	45

“Bringing pragmatic solutions for complex legal and tax aspects of your cross-border employment plans is what drives us.”

Introduction

You are a foreign company, starting or already having business operations in the Netherlands through a Dutch legal entity or an office or branch for which you will be seconding one or more employees to work in the Netherlands. Or maybe you would like to hire a local employee. You may also be a Dutch resident company and about to receive or hire an employee from outside the Netherlands. Probably the employee and even his family members will be moving to the Netherlands. In our experience, these situations might lead to questions, such as:

- do we need a work or residence permit for the employee?
- will we be confronted with Dutch mandatory labour law?
- does the employee have to pay tax in the Netherlands, and do we have a payroll obligation?
- must we pay Dutch social security contributions?
- how can we arrange for the participation in our company pension plan?

In this guidebook we will provide the answers to these and many other questions, grouped per subject, based on our knowledge and years of experience. It also contains a checklist with regard to registration as an employer and the Dutch payroll obligations involved.

We know that each situation triggers its specific questions. Consequently, we cannot rule out that you will still have questions after having read out the guidebook. Moreover, since rules and regulations in the relevant areas are very detailed, it is impossible to give you an exhaustive overview and checklist. We will be more than happy to answer your questions and provide you with additional information.

Abbreviations

AKW	General Child Benefit Act (Algemene Kinderbijslagwet)
Anw	Surviving Dependents Act (Algemene nabestaandenwet)
AOW	General Old Age Pensions Act (Algemene Ouderdomswet)
BES Countries	Bonaire, Saba and Sint Eustatius
BPM	Dutch Registration tax on private cars and motorcycles (Belasting van Personenauto's en Motorrijwielen)
BSN	Citizen Service Number (Burgerservicenummer)
EEA	European Economic Area (EU Member States, Norway, Iceland and Liechtenstein)
EU	European Union
IND	Immigration authorities (Immigratie en Naturalisatiedienst)
Knowledge migrants	Highly skilled migrant workers (Kennismigranten)
MVV	Immigration Entry visa (Machtiging tot Voorlopig Verblijf)
PhD	Doctor of Philosophy
Regulation	Regulation (EC) no. 883/2004
Regulation-countries	EU Member States, EEA and Switzerland
UK	United Kingdom
US	United States of America
UWV	Social Security Board (Uitvoeringsinstituut Werknemersverzekeringen)
VAT	Value added tax (Omzetbelasting)
WagwEU	Terms of Employment (Cross Border Work) Act (Wet arbeidsvoorwaarden gedetacheerde werknemers in de Europese Unie)
Wav	Foreign Nationals Employment Act (Wet arbeid vreemdelingen)
WIA	Work and Income according to Earnings Capacity Act (Wet werk en inkomen naar arbeidsvermogen)
WKR	Work-related Costs Scheme (Werkkostenregeling)
Wlz	Long term care Act (Wet langdurige zorg)
WW	Unemployment Insurance Act (Werkloosheidswet)
Zvw	Health Care Insurance Act (Zorgverzekeringswet)
ZW	Sickness Benefits Act (Ziektewet)

Checklist - Employment in the Netherlands

Version 2023

What	When	Who
Immigration - Permit requirements (see Q&A Chapter 1)
1	For non-EU/EEA nationals work and/or residence permits are legally required. In most cases, also an Immigration Entry visa ('MVV') must be obtained.	Prior to coming to the Netherlands	Employer and employee
2	It should be checked which type of permit is required, e.g. (i) as an Intra Corporate Transfer, (ii) as a highly skilled knowledge migrant, (iii) a regular residence and work permit.	Prior to coming to the Netherlands	Employer and employee
3	If applicable , depending on the type of permit, the employer should first register as a Recognised Sponsor with the Dutch immigration services ('IND').	Prior to coming to the Netherlands (please note that the registration as recognised sponsor could take a considerable amount of time)	Employer and employee
Labour law (see Q&A Chapter 2)
4	An employment agreement will have to be concluded between the employer and the new employee to confirm what has been agreed in the negotiations. See below under 30%-ruling.	Prior to start employment (please note that this is especially important when applying for the 30%-ruling)	Employer and employee
5	Determine by which law (Dutch, other) the employment agreement should be governed, by choice and mandatorily.	Prior to offering an employment	Employer
6	Determine whether any collective labour agreement which has been declared generally binding in the Netherlands applies on the work which the employee is to perform in the Netherlands	Prior to offering an employment	Employer
7	Check whether any conflict may arise between the law of the home country of the employee and the Dutch mandatory labour law rules and social security benefits (e.g. during illness). See below under Social security.	Prior to offering an employment	Employer
8	Determine whether a (mandatory or company) pension scheme applies to the new employee. If so, the employer notifies the pension provider, and registers the new employee accordingly. See below under Pension.	Prior to start employment	Employer

What	When	Who
Registration as employer for Dutch withholding tax purposes (see Q&A Chapter 3)
9 If applicable: Register the employer as a withholding agent for wage tax and social security contributions with the Dutch tax authorities.	Prior to start employment	Employer
10 Prior to the registration it should be determined in which industry the Company should be registered for employee insurance contributions. This is determined based on the business activities of the Company, and is decisive for the applicable contribution rate. See below under Social security.	Prior to registration as Employer	Employer
Setting-up a Dutch payroll (see Q&A Chapter 3)
11 When the wage tax number has been issued by the Dutch tax authorities, the Dutch payroll should be set-up.	As soon as the employer is registered as withholding agent	Employer
12 All employees are required to have a valid BSN (Citizen Service Number). Employees who do not have a BSN should apply for one at the municipality of which the employee is/will be a resident.	Prior to start employment	Employee
13 For identification purposes the employer has to verify and make a copy of the employee's original and valid identification documents.	Prior to start employment	Employer
14 All foreign employees (non-EU/EEA nationals) are required to have a valid residence and/or work permit in order to obtain a BSN. See above under Immigration - Permit requirements.	Prior to start employment	Employer and employee
15 The employee has to complete and sign a so-called 'wage tax declaration form'.	Prior to start employment	Employer and employee
16 If applicable: The employer and employee jointly apply for a so-called document A1 or Certificate of Coverage. See below under Social security.	Prior to start employment	Employer and employee
17 If applicable: The employer and employee jointly apply for a 30%-ruling. Conditions will have to be met. See below under 30%-ruling.	Within 4 months from the start date of the employment	Employer and employee
18 Any expense reimbursements or allowances should be designated under the Work-related Cost Scheme ('WKR'). This will render it possible to provide employees with certain (tax-exempt) benefits. Specific conditions apply. See Q&A Chapter 3.	Prior to start employment	Employer
The 30%-ruling - If applicable (see Q&A Chapter 4)
19 The employer and employee can jointly apply for a 30%-ruling, under the condition that the employee qualifies for said ruling.	Within 4 months from the first workday	Employer and employee
20 The employer and employee agree, in writing (e.g. as addendum to the employment contract), to apply the 30%-ruling, provided it is granted by the Dutch tax authorities.	Prior to start employment	Employer and employee

What	When	Who
Social security (see Q&A Chapter 5)
21 Determine in which country the employee is subject to social security and, if required, apply for an A1 or Certificate of Coverage.	Prior to start employment	Employer and employee
22 The employer should check all local payroll obligations in case the employee is subject to a social security system other than the Netherlands.	Prior to start employment	Employer
23 Determine if it is preferable for the employer to be treated as 'own risk bearer' for certain parts of the Dutch social security system, and if so, file a request to that effect with the Dutch Tax Authorities.	Prior to registration as employer	Employer
24 Determine whether the employer prefers to insure the risk of having to continue payment of wages during sickness of his employees (max 104 weeks according to Dutch labour law) with a private insurer.	Prior to registration as employer	Employer
Pension (see Q&A Chapter 6)
25 It has to be determined whether or not the employees are required to join an industry-wide pension fund. If so, they must be registered with the appropriate fund.	Prior to start employment	Employer
26 Within a month after commencing employment, a written notice has to be given by the employer to the employee, stating whether or not he will offer him to participate in a company pension scheme. If such an offer is made, the employer is responsible to ensure that the employee receives information on the details of the pension scheme (in the form of a so-called 'initial letter')	Notice within 1 month after commencing employment; information about the pension scheme within a period of 3 months.	Employer
27 If a foreign pension scheme remains applicable, it should be assessed whether it is beneficial to have the pension scheme acknowledged by the Dutch tax authorities to gain access to the Dutch tax facilities in view of the contribution payments to be made.	Preferably prior to start employment	Employer and employee
Some attention points
28 Situations in which employees come from abroad and who are not to be employed by the (Dutch) employer require individual checks on the tax and social security position. See Q&A Chapter 5. Furthermore, it needs to be checked whether or not a notification requirement is in place. See Q&A Chapter 2.	Prior to start employment
29 Manage recurring obligations. If a company sets up business activities in a new jurisdiction, management and employees may be unfamiliar with local rules and regulations. It is important to determine suitable processes to manage local compliance risks in respect of employment tax and legal matters.

“

“Bringing pragmatic legal and tax solutions for your cross-border employment plans is what drives us.”

Jan Bart Schober

Tax partner – Loyens & Loeff Employment & Benefits

“Cross-border employment often requires know-how and experience covering several areas of law. For instance, appointing foreign members to the Board of Directors of a Dutch group company may involve employment taxes, labour law, privacy and regulatory aspects for their equity incentives. It may also trigger questions on substance requirements for Dutch corporate income tax or withholding tax purposes.

Together with other Loyens & Loeff experts, our team of Employment & Benefits specialists support you from the start in shaping your plans and mitigating the risk of unwelcome surprises.

This Q&A guides you through various aspects of cross-border employment taxes and labour law.”

1. Immigration law

Checklist Immigration - Permit requirements

	What	When	Who
1	For non-EU/EEA nationals work and/or residence permits are legally required. In most cases, also an Immigration Entry visa ('MVV') must be obtained.	Prior to coming to the Netherlands	Employer and employee
2	It should be checked which type of permit is required, e.g. (i) as an Intra Corporate Transfer, (ii) as a highly skilled knowledge migrant, (iii) a regular residence and work permit.	Prior to coming to the Netherlands	Employer and employee
3	If applicable , depending on the type of permit, the employer should first register as a Recognised Sponsor with the Dutch immigration services ('IND').	Prior to coming to the Netherlands (please note that the registration as recognised sponsor could take a considerable amount of time)	Employer and employee

When do we need a Dutch work permit for the employee?

The main rule of the Foreign Nationals Employment Act (Wav) is that a work permit must be requested for each foreign national who wants to work in the Netherlands, with the exception of nationals of EU Member States, the European Economic Area (EEA; which includes the EU as well as Norway, Liechtenstein and Iceland) and Switzerland. Apart from the regular employment situation, a work permit must also be obtained for part-time work, jobs aimed at obtaining work experience, training on the job-positions and volunteer positions. Even if the employee is hired from another company, for instance an employment agency, a work permit is required. There are certain exceptions to these rules. The principal for whom the work is actually being carried out is responsible for ensuring that a work permit is obtained.

Which persons are exempted from a work permit obligation?

- knowledge migrants, as explained further on
- intra corporate transferees, as explained further on
- foreign nationals who are allowed to stay in the Netherlands on the basis of community law (i.e. nationals of EU/EEA-countries and of Switzerland, and their family members)
- foreign nationals who have a permanent residence permit
- foreign nationals who have been exempted in view of specific activities to be performed during a very short period of time in the Netherlands, for instance to repair machinery, attend business meetings, attend training courses, or install software
- foreign nationals who have a residence permit, with an annotation stating that the foreign national is permitted to freely carry out work
- foreign nationals who are resident, having a residence permit for at least five years with the purpose of legally working in the Netherlands
- foreign nationals who have a residence permit for the purpose of becoming/being self-employed

Which conditions must be met to obtain a work permit?

Pursuant to the Wav, a work permit will be refused if there are employees on the 'local labour market' who can fill the position. This labour market not only includes the Netherlands, but the entire EU/EEA and Switzerland. Another requirement is that the position must be advertised within the EU/EEA and Switzerland well in advance (at least five weeks before the work permit is requested), in other words: before the employee is recruited from abroad. Furthermore, sufficient efforts must be made to hire nationals from the EU/EEA and Switzerland. These grounds for refusal do not apply in the case of an intercompany transfer of specialised employees. Several other conditions must also be met.

How long will the work permit be valid?

The validity of a work permit is limited to a maximum period of three years. If the employee needs to continue his activities in the Netherlands after this period, the work permit application process will have to start over again.

What is the penalty for not complying with the work permit requirements?

For each employee who works in the Netherlands without the required work permit, you will owe a fine of € 8,000 or more, whether you acted in conflict with the law deliberately or not. Other companies may be fined for the same offence and to the same amount if they can (also) be considered employers pursuant to the Wav. Furthermore, the company may be registered in a public register, making the violation of the rules public.

For which employees/nationals a Dutch residence permit is required?

All foreign nationals (except those from EU Member States, the EEA and Switzerland) who want to reside in the Netherlands for a period exceeding three months (90 days in any period of 180 days), need a residence permit.

A residence permit is always explicitly issued for a specific purpose of stay in the Netherlands, e.g. work, study or family reunification. In order to obtain a residence permit, several conditions must be met. A residence permit is normally granted after a work permit has been granted.

Employees who are employed by an employer located outside the EU/EEA or Switzerland and who are seconded to a group company in the Netherlands as manager, specialist or trainee have to apply for a residence permit as an 'intra corporate transferee'. If a residence permit has been granted, the intra corporate transferee is allowed to work in the Netherlands without the additional requirement of having a work permit. This is explained further on.

If the employee is not an intra corporate transferee, an alternative residence permit may be obtained for highly skilled migrant workers ('knowledge migrants'). If the conditions for this alternative route are met, the knowledge migrant is allowed to work in the Netherlands without the additional requirement of having a work permit. This alternative is explained further on.

Do we have to obtain an immigration entry visa (MVV) for the employee who needs a residence permit

In most cases, those who wish to obtain a residence permit must apply for an immigration entry visa (MVV). If an MVV is required and the employee has not obtained one, his residence permit will not be issued. There are exceptions: e.g. nationals of one of the EU Member States, the EEA or Switzerland, the United States, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Japan, South Korea, Monaco and Vatican City do not need to apply for an MVV.

How do we apply for an MVV and a residence permit for the employee?

The residence permit application and, if required, the MVV application must jointly be filed by the Dutch employer/receiving company with the Immigration and Naturalisation Services (IND) while the employee is still residing abroad. If the employee meets all requirements for staying in the Netherlands, the IND will approve the applications. The MVV will be marked in the passport, by means of a sticker, by the Dutch embassy or consulate in the home country of the employee, in the nearest country in which the Netherlands has representation or in the country in which the employee legally resides. It allows the holder of this passport to enter the Netherlands. Upon entering the Netherlands, the employee is entitled to a residence permit.

If an MVV is required, the employee cannot enter the Netherlands prior to having been issued the MVV.

What is an intra corporate transferee?

Intra corporate transferees are employees who are employed by an employer located outside the EU/EER or Switzerland and assigned to a group company in the Netherlands as manager or specialist on bachelor level or as a trainee with a master's degree. The intra corporate transferee must in principle receive an income that is in line with the salary test for highly skilled migrant workers (see below). Intra corporate transferees have to apply for a residence permit under the intercompany transferee programme. National programmes as the highly skilled migrant programme cannot be used if the employees fall under the intercompany transferee programme. The residence permit application may be rejected if the Dutch group company does not perform real activities in the Netherlands.

What is a highly skilled migrant worker (kennismigrantenregeling)?

Highly skilled migrant workers ('knowledge migrants') are employees (other than self-employed persons) whose monthly income exceeds a certain level (adjusted every year) and is in line with prevailing market salaries. The income test is applied on a monthly basis. Income in kind and variable salary components (bonuses) are not taken into consideration for the income test.

To be able to use the highly skilled migrant programme the Dutch employer/receiving company must be recognised as sponsor for the purpose of the programme.

Under certain conditions, foreign university graduates are allowed to stay in the Netherlands for a period of one year to find a job as a knowledge migrant after completing their studies in the Netherlands or abroad. Before that year ends, they must have entered into an employment contract. Also in this situation, a minimum salary test is applicable, albeit that the threshold is somewhat lower. Income in kind and variable salary components (bonuses) are not taken into consideration for the salary-standard tests.

Another category of knowledge migrants are those working on a PhD.; for them there is no age or income requirement. Postdoctoral or university professors under the age of 30 are considered knowledge migrants, regardless of the level of their income.

Do we need a work permit for a knowledge migrant/intra corporate transferee?

No, knowledge migrants and intra corporate transferees with a valid residence permit for this purpose are allowed to work in the Netherlands without a separate work permit.

What is the duration of the residence permit for knowledge migrants?

Knowledge migrants receive a five-year residence permit if they have an employment contract for an indefinite period of time. If they have an employment contract for a limited period of time, the residence permit is granted for that period.

What is the duration of the residence permit for intra corporate transferees?

Intra corporate transferees receive a residence permit for the duration of the assignment with a maximum period of three years.

What are the obligations for us as non-Dutch employer?

For you, being the non-Dutch employer, there are no obligations.

What are the obligations for us as the receiving company?

The Dutch company (employer, or 'deemed employer' based on the applicable rules and regulations) is regarded a sponsor and has certain obligations: e.g. all changes of circumstances which may be of influence to the status of the employee must be reported immediately, certain documents must be kept in the administration and the employees must have been carefully recruited from abroad.

It is essential that all obligations are met carefully, as you risk owing a fine of € 3,000 for each violation. A recognised sponsor may even lose his status as recognised sponsor and the employee may lose his status as a knowledge migrant.

Carefully observe if all obligations are met, as the IND has increased its possibilities to investigate any violations of the obligations.

Carefully observe the income requirement for knowledge migrants and intra-corporate transferees. You must always be able to guarantee and prove that the required cash income is paid to the bank account of the employee each month.

2. Labour law

“In cross-border situations, we help you optimise your employment contracts in line with relevant Dutch labour law.”

Edith Fransen

Attorney at Law – Loyens & Loeff Employment & Benefits

“How do I deal with foreign social security benefits during illness and the obligation under Dutch law to continue salary payment? What about dismissal law? When there is new cross-border activity, such as the secondment of an executive or an employee or in the case of an international reorganisation, exploring Dutch labour law consequences as soon as possible together with an expert is key. Our advice keeps all parties in mind – we want to contribute to your success!”

Checklist Labour law
	What	When	Who
4	An employment agreement will have to be concluded between the employer and the new employee to confirm what has been agreed in the negotiations. See Q&A chapter 4 Expatriate tax regime: the 30%-ruling.	Prior to start employment (please note that this is especially important when applying for the 30%-ruling)	Employer and employee
5	Determine by which law (Dutch, other) the employment agreement should be governed, by choice and mandatorily.	Prior to offering an employment	Employer
6	Determine whether any collective labour agreement which has been declared generally binding in the Netherlands applies on the work which the employee is to perform in the Netherlands	Prior to offering an employment	Employer
7	Check whether any conflict may arise between the law of the home country of the employee and the Dutch mandatory labour law rules and social security benefits (e.g. during illness). See Q&A chapter 5 Social security.	Prior to offering an employment	Employer
8	Determine whether a (mandatory or company) pension scheme applies to the new employee. If so, the employer notifies the pension provider, and registers the new employee accordingly. See Q&A chapter 6 Pension.	Prior to start employment	Employer

Will Dutch labour law become applicable if we hire or second an employee from abroad?

Certain Dutch provisions of employment law will apply on the employee. Usually, in the employment contract a choice of law is made. Irrespective of this choice of law in the employment contract, the fact that the employee will be working in the Netherlands, will result in the application of certain mandatory provisions of Dutch labour law.

As from the first day, the Terms of Employment (Cross-border Work) Act (WagwEU) applies to all employees from outside the Netherlands who work in the Netherlands and who have been posted by their employer from another EU Member State to the Netherlands. Besides, for all employees (whether or not posted) the following provisions in Dutch law and applicable Collective Labour Agreements (which have been declared generally binding) apply to the employment contract of each employee who works in the Netherlands:

- maximum working hours and minimum resting hours
- minimum number of paid holidays per year (4 weeks)
- minimum wage, including payments for overtime, excluding complementary company pension schemes
- provision of a payslip
- conditions for the hiring out of employees
- health, safety and hygiene at work and liability for accidents
- obligation to provide information on essential elements of the employment relationship
- protective measures regarding employment conditions and working conditions for specific groups of employees

- prohibition of termination in the event of pregnancy
- equal treatment of men and women, nullify termination for breach of equal treatment as well as other subjects of non-discrimination

The main rule is that from the thirteenth month of the posting, the full Dutch labour law will apply, with the exception of dismissal law, including non-compete clauses and pension law. Please note, however, that there are some exceptions to this main rule.

Do we need to offer the posted employee a Dutch employment contract?

In general, this is not necessary. Whether or not you choose to do so depends on the length of the posting, the position of the employee within the Dutch company or the group assignment policy. Offering a Dutch employment contract may be relevant for tax, social security and/or pension reasons or for the ability of the employee to obtain a residence and/or work permit.

Check whether a Dutch employment contract is required.

Can we offer the employee a Dutch employment contract for a definite period of time?

You can, within a total period of three years, enter into a maximum of three consecutive employment contracts for a definite period of time with the employee. If this is followed by a fourth contract, this fourth contract will automatically be considered to be an employment contract for an indefinite period of time. Also, if the total period of three years is exceeded, the temporary contract automatically turns into a contract for an indefinite period of time, even if this is only the second temporary contract. This does not apply if there is an interruption of more than six months between two contracts, during which period the employee neither has an employment contract with you nor works for you through an employment agency.

Will the laws of the home country continue to apply to the employee?

Yes, if the Netherlands is the country where the employee only works temporarily, the law of the home country remains applicable. But as from the first day the employee works in the Netherlands, certain Dutch regulations apply mandatorily. The most important ones are the Act on the Minimum Wage, the Health and Safety Act and the Act on Working Times and (as far as it concerns employees from outside the EEA or Switzerland), and (if the employee is posted by an employer from another EU Member State) the provisions of the Dutch Civil Code as referred to in Article 2 of the WagwEU.

However, the longer the posting or the working period in the Netherlands lasts, the higher the risk that the Netherlands will be regarded as the country in which the employee habitually works, meaning that more mandatory rules of Dutch law may apply than only the ones as mentioned above, which offer the employee better protection than similar provisions in his home country. For example, the protective rules on dismissals and continued payment during illness.

If the Netherlands is the country in which the employee habitually works and Dutch social security already applies, you may consider opting to have Dutch law apply to the employment contract.

Is there a minimum amount of information that we have to share with the employee?

Usually employers inform their employees on the essential aspects of a secondment, but within the EU you must share at least the following information with the employee:

- a written employment contract, a letter of appointment and/or a written document containing various particulars of the employment contract or employment relationship, e.g. the identity of the parties, the place of work, the salary, etc. prior to the employee leaving his home country

- the duration of the period of employment in the Netherlands
- the currency in which the salary will be paid
- if applicable, the social security aspects during his stay in the Netherlands
- if applicable, the arrangements regarding the employee's return to his home country

Which employment conditions should we address in particular under Dutch labour law?

If you want to offer the employee a local contract in the Netherlands, a few aspects are important to address.

The trial period

A statutory maximum applies. An employment contract for a definite period of more than two years may contain a trial period of a maximum of two months. An employment contract for a definite period of more than six months but less than two years may contain a trial period of a maximum of one month. An employment contract of six months or less may not contain a trial period. The trial period should be agreed to in the individual employment contract or in the applicable Collective Labour Agreement.

The non-compete clause

If you want to include a non-compete clause, this has to be laid down in writing in the individual employment contract. In temporary contracts, non-compete clauses can only be concluded if you explicitly motivate in detail why a non-compete clause is important for this particular employee.

Sickness and reintegration

During the first 104 weeks of sickness, the employee is entitled to 70% of his last-earned salary, whereby he is entitled to at least the minimum wage during the first 52 weeks (this minimum does not apply during the second year). There is also a maximum, namely the maximum daily wage. If the employee earns more than the maximum daily wage, he is only entitled to 70% of the maximum daily wage. You can only dismiss the employee on the grounds that he is ill after two years of illness. During the illness, you and the employee must cooperate as much as possible on the reintegration of the employee. The Dutch requirement of continuation of salary payments may conflict with the social security benefits if the employee is subject to the social security system of his home country. A special provision in the employment contract should cover this situation.

Liability for accidents and work-related disease

If the employee has an accident or develops an occupational disease at work, he can hold you liable. You can only avoid liability if you can prove that you have taken all necessary precautions to avoid the accident/disease, or if you can prove that the accident/disease is the result of deliberate action or conscious recklessness of the employee. In practice, deliberate action or conscious recklessness turns out to be very difficult to prove.

Do we have to meet registration requirements when an employee is seconded to the Netherlands?

The WagwEU determines that employers from other countries within the European Economic Area and Switzerland that post workers to the Netherlands or that perform a temporary assignment in the Netherlands have to register this at the website of the Minister of Social Affairs and Employability. The following details need to be provided: (i) the identity of the service provider, (ii) the identity of the posted employee (iii) company data and a contact person in the Netherlands who acts as a point of contact, (iv) identity of the service recipient, (v) the branch in which the work will be performed in the Netherlands, (vi) address where the work will be performed, (vii) expected duration of the posting and type of work, (viii) identity of person that is responsible for the payment of the salary, (ix) a document A1 or other proof that the social security premiums will be paid.

Are there other administrative requirements we must meet when seconding an employee to the Netherlands?

During the secondment period the WagwEU requires for you to make (among other things) the following documents available at the workplace of the seconded employee (in Dutch, English, French or German only).

- The employment contracts
- Proof of the identity of you, the seconding employer
- Proof of the identity of the employee
- Document A1 (if not subject to Dutch social security) and proof of payment of the social security contributions
- Pay slips
- Summaries of working hours

You should inform the company outside the Netherlands which wants to second an employee to the Netherlands, about the Dutch WagwEU requirements to be met. They may differ from similar requirements based on the EU Posted Workers Directive and the EU Enforcement Directive in other countries.

Can you explain the Dutch law on dismissal?

If an employee has an employment contract for an indefinite period of time and there are no urgent grounds for termination, there are four ways in which an employment agreement can be terminated. Which route should be followed, depends on the ground for termination.

Dismissal permit from the UWV

In case of redundancies due to economic reasons or if the employee has been sick during a period of two years or more the employer needs to obtain a permit of a governmental institution (UWV). If the UWV issues a dismissal permit, you can terminate the employment contract in accordance with the applicable notice period. The statutory notice period varies from one to four months, depending on the total duration of the employment. The employment contract can contain a longer notice period.

Court decision

This option is used when the reason for a dismissal is other than on economic grounds or long-term illness. You can ask the court to dissolve the employment contract.

If the employer initiates the termination, he will have to pay a transition payment (transitievergoeding). Only in case of severe culpability on the side of the employee, he loses his right to the transitional payment. This is hardly the case.

Mutual settlement

In most cases, the employer and the employee enter into a settlement agreement in which the terms for termination of the employment contract are laid down. The willingness of employees to agree to a mutual settlement generally depends on how strong the alternative case is (i.e. a termination via the UWV or court). If there is an urgent reason for dismissal, the employee can be dismissed immediately without previous permission from UWV or court. An urgent reason could for example be fraud or serious harassment.

What about directors of a Dutch company?

Under Dutch law, a formally appointed board member (Director) of a private limited company or public limited company holds a special position. The legal position of the Director of a foundation is not yet the same (it will be on 1 July 2021).

Usually, the general meeting of shareholders is authorised to dismiss or suspend a Director, in accordance with corporate law. If the Director also has an employment contract with the company (which is not always automatically the case), and he is dismissed by the shareholders in accordance with the corporate law, his employment contract ends automatically as a consequence of the corporate dismissal. This means that you do not have to obtain prior consent of the UWV or ask the Court to dissolve the employment contract. Only two protective employment law provisions apply to the Director.

The first one is that the (contractual or statutory) notice period for termination of the employment contract must be observed.

The second one is that, if the Director is ill, the employment contract does not end automatically after the corporate dismissal. A Director, who is dismissed, may request the competent court to award compensation for his dismissal via a claim for a reasonable severance payment. However, the Director cannot request the court to restore the employment relationship.

Under Dutch law, the legal relationship between a Director and a listed company cannot be regarded as an employment relationship and, hence, the contractual relationship will qualify as a contract for services. As a result, the two protective employment law provisions as mentioned above, will not apply to the Director. Moreover, the Director will not be able to demand compensation for his dismissal via a claim for a reasonable severance payment. Whether a notice period must be observed for this purpose will largely depend on the agreement between the parties.

3. Wage withholding tax

Registration as employer for Dutch withholding tax purposes

	What	When	Who
9	If applicable: Register the employer as a withholding agent for wage tax and social security contributions with the Dutch tax authorities.	Prior to start employment	Employer
10	Prior to the registration it should be determined in which industry the Company should be registered for employee insurance contributions. This is determined based on the business activities of the Company, and is decisive for the applicable contribution rate. See Q&A chapter 5 Social security.	Prior to registration as Employer	Employer

Setting-up a Dutch payroll

	What	When	Who
11	When the wage tax number has been issued by the Dutch tax authorities, the Dutch payroll should be set-up.	As soon as the employer is registered as withholding agent	Employer
12	All employees are required to have a valid BSN (Citizen Service Number). Employees who do not have a BSN should apply for one at the municipality of which the employee is/will be a resident.	Prior to start employment	Employee
13	For identification purposes the employer has to verify and make a copy of the employee's original and valid identification documents.	Prior to start employment	Employer
14	All foreign employees (non-EU/EEA nationals) are required to have a valid residence and/or work permit in order to obtain a BSN. See Q&A chapter 1 Immigration law.	Prior to start employment	Employer and employee
15	The employee has to complete and sign a so-called 'wage tax declaration form'.	Prior to start employment	Employer and employee
16	If applicable: The employer and employee jointly apply for a so-called document A1 or Certificate of Coverage. See Q&A chapter 5 Social security.	Prior to start employment	Employer and employee
17	If applicable: The employer and employee jointly apply for a 30%-ruling. Conditions will have to be met. See Q&A chapter 4 Expatriate tax regime: the 30%-ruling.	Within 4 months from the start date of the employment	Employer and employee
18	Any expense reimbursements or allowances should be designated under the Work-related Cost Scheme ('WKR'). This will render it possible to provide employees with certain (tax-exempt) benefits. Specific conditions apply.	Prior to start employment	Employer

What is wage withholding tax?

Wage withholding tax is an income tax due by an employee, to be withheld and paid by the employer on a – usually – monthly basis. The employee can credit the tax against his personal income tax eventually due. On certain fringe benefits (lump sum) tax may be due by the employer on the basis of the Work-related Costs Scheme (werkkostenregeling; WKR). This scheme provides specific tax regulations for reimbursements or allowances for work related expenses.

Use the possibilities of the WKR to optimise the tax treatment of the remuneration package of your employee who is coming from abroad. Special attention should be given to the 30%-ruling. Reference is made to chapter 4 on the 30%-ruling.

Which payroll obligations do we have?

Each employer has to register with the Dutch Tax authorities as ‘withholding entity’ for the payment of wage withholding tax (and, if applicable, social security contributions) due on the taxable wage of employees.

Dutch employer

If you are a Dutch employer and already run a payroll administration, you can simply add the employees coming from abroad to your payroll.

Non-Dutch employer

If you are not resident of the Netherlands but have a permanent establishment (office or branch) in the Netherlands your employees are working for, you have to register as withholding entity and file monthly wage withholding tax returns. For that, you can seek the assistance of specialised payroll bureaus.

If you, as a non-Dutch employer, hire out personnel to work for a principal (either a third party or a Dutch group company) in the Netherlands, you are considered to have a ‘deemed permanent establishment’ (for Dutch wage withholding tax only) and therefore have to maintain a payroll administration.

Under certain conditions, a Dutch group company may take over your responsibilities. This requires prior consent from the Tax authorities.

If a Dutch group company takes over your wage tax withholding obligations the group company must be aware of the consequences and you and the group company must request prior approval from the Tax authorities.

Does the employee have to register his presence in the Netherlands?

If the employee wishes to stay in the Netherlands for a period of more than four months, he must register – in person – with the municipal authorities (BRP) within five days after arriving. He must submit:

- a valid passport (this also applies to his spouse and children)
- a legalised copy of his birth certificate (this also applies to the spouse and children)
- a legalised marriage certificate (if applicable)
- if either partner was previously married, a copy of the divorce decree

Non-residents staying in the Netherlands for a period not exceeding four months also have to register (in person), but as non-residents (RNI registration).

Upon registration, the municipal authorities will issue a BSN (Citizen Service Number), a unique personal ID for tax and social security, but used by Dutch public authorities for many more purposes.

The BSN is an important personal number in respect of your payroll obligations, as well as for the employee to get things started in the Netherlands. Make sure he gets one before starting his work for you.

What is employment income?

Employment income is defined very broadly and can be, for example:

- Income in cash: such as regular employment income, expat allowances, commissions, bonuses, etc.
- Income in kind: such as the taxable benefit in relation to the private use of the company car, free accommodation, free meals, free travel, shares, goods, etc.
- Entitlements: conditional rights to receive one or more future benefits, to be taxed in the future e.g. pensions, certain social security benefits.

The taxable benefit in relation to the private use of a company car is determined on a notional basis. It can be avoided if your employee does not exceed 500 private kilometres per year (he has to keep a daily record of the kilometres driven) and obtains a confirmation thereof from the Tax authorities.

How are Long Term Incentive Plans taxed in the Netherlands?

Often, the entitlement to LTIP incentives depends on targets to be reached and is therefore conditional and subject to a vesting period. In general, such incentives are taxable on the vesting date. In case of cross-border employment, the (possibly partially) Dutch tax obligation has to be determined based on the tax position of the employee during the vesting period. This means that you may still have to pay wage withholding tax after the employee has left the Netherlands.

Stock option rights are taxable at the time they are exercised. Tax is due over the gain realised at that moment, being the difference between the fair market value of the underlying shares at the moment of exercise and the exercise price of the stock option rights. A gain realised with the exercise of stock option rights granted in the period prior to the start or after the end of the employment in the Netherlands may also be (partially) taxable in the Netherlands.

Which expenses can we reimburse in a tax friendly way?

Most work-related expenses incurred by an employee can be reimbursed free of tax under the WKR. For this, you have to designate reimbursements and allowances in your administration as tax-free under the WKR. This applies for e.g. travel expenses, moving expenses, costs of meals, courses, mobile phones and computers.

A special category is that of the 'extraterritorial expenses', such as home leave, double housing, language courses. These expenses may be reimbursed as explained above. However, if certain conditions are met, a fixed tax-free allowance for extraterritorial expenses can be paid, based on the so-called 30%-ruling. Reference is made to chapter 4 on the 30%-ruling.

Do we have to pay Dutch wage withholding tax on the full salary if non-resident employees also work outside the Netherlands?

In general, non-resident employees only owe tax in the Netherlands on income generated on 'Dutch workdays' (as determined by physical presence). Therefore, you only have to withhold wage tax for this part of the remuneration. If no tax treaty applies or the remuneration for non-Dutch workdays is not subject to tax anywhere, you may also have to pay wage withholding tax for the salary paid over non-Dutch workdays, based on Dutch national law. These situations require special attention, e.g. when the employee claims a tax exemption in the home country or on the basis of non-remittance in the UK.

Carefully check the tax residence status of the employee in both countries since it is a determining factor for all kinds of taxes, as well as for social security.

How to tax the fee of a Director of a Dutch company?

Directors' fees are taxed in the same way as the salary of an employee, meaning you have to deduct wage withholding tax. However, in general directors' fees are taxable in full in the country in which the company is resident. So, if you as a Dutch company have non-resident directors, taxation may not be limited to Dutch workdays.

Under certain Dutch tax treaties, you do not have to tax the full directors' fees.

You do not have to deduct wage withholding tax for fees paid to supervisory board members (commissarissen). This also applies to non-executive board members of a listed company with a one-tier board. However, under certain conditions, you and the individual supervisory board member or the non-executive board member respectively can choose to nevertheless go for wage tax withholding ('opting in'). This may be beneficial, e.g. as it could allow the 30%-ruling to apply.

4. Expatriate tax regime: the 30%-ruling

The 30%-ruling - If applicable
	What	When	Who
19	The employer and employee can jointly apply for a 30%-ruling, under the condition that the employee qualifies for said ruling.	Within 4 months after commencing employment	Employer and employee
20	The employer and employee agree, in writing (e.g. as addendum to the employment contract), to apply the 30%-ruling, provided it is granted by the Dutch tax authorities.	Prior to start employment	Employer and employee

What is the 30%-ruling?

The 30%-ruling is a tax incentive for employees who are seconded or hired from abroad to work in the Netherlands and have 'scarce specific skills'. They are assumed to incur so-called 'extraterritorial expenses'. You can pay (up to) 30% of the remuneration as a fixed allowance free of tax if certain conditions are met. The tax break may also reduce the amount of social security contributions due by you and your employee. The conditions of the 30%-ruling are explained in the Employee section.

What exactly are extraterritorial expenses?

Extraterritorial expenses are extra expenses your employee incurs in connection with working outside his home country, extra meaning: compared to his regular expenses in his home country. These can be expenses for travelling/commuting between the home country and the Netherlands, home leave, higher cost of living, double housing expenses for a non-resident employee, a language course, fees for international schools, etc.

Can extraterritorial expenses be reimbursed free from tax?

As a general rule, extraterritorial expenses can be reimbursed free from tax under the WKR (Work-related Costs Scheme), provided you explicitly designate these payments in your administration as a specific tax exemption (for extraterritorial expenses) under the WKR. You need to keep proof of the costs, such as invoices, receipts, tickets, specified expense reports.

Why should we apply for a 30%-ruling instead of reimbursing the actual extraterritorial expenses?

Firstly, if the 30%-ruling has been granted, you can reimburse extraterritorial expenses free from tax without having to prove the actual extraterritorial expenses. Furthermore, in case of a net salary agreement, the 30%-ruling will reduce your total salary cost.

In addition, the application of a 30%-ruling may offer some other benefits.

- If the employee is a Dutch tax resident and the 30%-ruling applies, he can choose to report his income from investments and assets as well as his income from substantial shareholdings, as a 'partial non-resident taxpayer' (based on a limited tax liability). This implies that, in general, he does not have to report such income. From a Dutch tax point of view, in general, this tax position is beneficial for the employee.
- It may be easier for the employee to exchange his foreign driving licence for a Dutch driving licence.

Can the 30%-ruling be applied to an unlimited salary?

For 2023, the 30%-ruling can be applied to the full salary of the employee. From 2024 onwards, the tax-free allowance under the 30%-ruling is capped at 30% of the maximum remuneration as stipulated in the Standards for Remuneration Act (Wet normering topinkomens).

What if we reimburse extraterritorial expenses in addition to the fixed 30% allowance?

If you reimburse expenses or pay a separate allowance for expenses which are to be qualified as extraterritorial expenses in addition to applying the 30%-ruling, these additional payments will be taxable. An exception to this applies to qualifying international school fees.

Can we reimburse tuition fees for international schools free from tax?

Yes, tuition fees for international schools or schools recognised as such by the Tax authorities – since such fees are regarded as extraterritorial expenses – can be reimbursed free from tax, whether the 30%-ruling is applicable or not. Please note that you always have to designate the reimbursement as tax-free allowance with the WKR.

Which conditions should be met to apply the 30%-ruling?

As a main rule, the following requirements have to be satisfied to apply for the 30%-ruling:

- The employee qualifies as an 'incoming employee', i.e. seconded or hired from another country to work in the Netherlands
- The employee lived (i.e. his tax residency) at a distance exceeding 150 km (as the crow flies) from the Dutch border during more than 16 out of 24 months prior to the start of the employment in the Netherlands
- The employee's taxable salary exceeds a certain minimum threshold
- The salary is reported, and wage withholding tax is deducted from it, through a Dutch payroll
- You and your employee jointly file a request for application of the 30%-ruling with the Dutch Tax authorities

Some exceptions may apply to the requirements mentioned under 1, 2 and 3 (for example, in case of change of employer, employees with certain degrees or under a certain age, or employees of certain qualifying scientific or educational institutions).

Special attention should be paid if the employee had a former job in the Netherlands in respect of which a 30%-ruling applied. In that case, he may still qualify if the period in between jobs does not exceed three months (including garden leave).

We are happy to assess the applicability of the 30%-ruling on a case-by-case basis in more detail.

Can the 30%-ruling be applied to a Director of a Dutch company?

A formally appointed board member of a Dutch company is regarded as an employee, and hence a Director may qualify for the 30%-ruling. The 30%-ruling applies even if the Director does not physically work in the Netherlands. Please note that is different for Directors being resident of the UK or the US.

A supervisory director (commissaris) is in principle not regarded as an employee. In order to apply the 30%-ruling to a supervisory director, both the company and the supervisory director have to opt in for the supervisory director to be regarded as an employee (subject to certain conditions). The same applies to a non-executive director of a listed company.

Can we apply for the 30%-ruling if the employee does not move to the Netherlands?

Yes, the employee does not have to actually move to the Netherlands in order to qualify for the 30%-ruling. Also non-residents may qualify.

For how long can the 30%-ruling be applied?

The maximum term is five years. Earlier periods of presence or work in the Netherlands may reduce this term. An exception is made for those periods of presence or work in the Netherlands which ended more than 25 years ago.

When should the 30%-ruling be applied for?

If the application is filed within four months from the start of the employment, the 30%-ruling can be applied in the payroll retro-actively. If the application is not filed in time, the 30%-ruling can be applied starting the month following the month in which the application was filed.

What if the Tax authorities deny the 30%-ruling?

If your application is denied and you disagree, you and your employer can file a letter of objection within six weeks. If necessary, you can go to court.

Which agreement on the 30%-ruling should we make with our employee?

You have to agree with the employee (in writing, and preferably in an addendum to the employment/secondment contract) that part of the gross salary initially agreed is paid as a tax-free 30%-allowance, and what the consequences thereof are for the employee.

Contact us for a draft of an addendum on the 30%-ruling.

How can we pay the 30%-allowance without having to deduct tax?

In the payroll administration, you have to designate part of the remuneration that is paid as allowance under the 30%-ruling (and if applicable, the payment or reimbursement of international school-fees) as a specific tax exemption (gerichte vrijstelling) for extraterritorial expenses in accordance with the WKR.

Can we include the 30%-allowance in the pensionable base in our company pension scheme?

Yes, that may be possible, but only if your pension scheme allows the accrual of pension rights on such specific tax-exempted income.

What is the benefit of the 30%-ruling for the social security contributions due by us as the employer?

If the gross income of the employee is reduced with the 30%-allowance, you may end up having to pay less employer contributions. Of course, it will also reduce any benefits (disability, unemployment) the employee might receive. You should inform your employee about this in the agreement (addendum) on the 30%-ruling.

Can we apply the 30%-ruling to a severance payment?

The 30%-ruling is not applicable to termination payments. As of the date the employee leaves your service before the 30%-ruling period has ended, you have one additional month to make the final settlement of vacation pay, vacation days etc. and apply the 30%-ruling.

The 30%-ruling may no longer be applicable at an earlier point in time if the employee is on 'garden leave' first.

What is the impact of the special status of US citizens for our payroll?

If your employee is a US citizen (or Green Card holder) and he is tax resident in the Netherlands, his salary may be taxed as if he were a tax non-resident: only income earned on workdays physically spent in the Netherlands is taxable in the Netherlands. The condition is that on his income tax return he elects the partial non-resident taxpayer status. You have to reduce the taxable salary in the monthly payroll administration on the basis of a workdays record.

For Directors the days allocation is different.

Contact us for advice on how to simplify this administrative process.

How can we avoid our employees having to file an annual income tax return to cash our tax refund?

If the employee is working under a net-salary agreement, any tax refund has to go to the employer. Especially in years of immigration or emigration such tax refund may be substantial. In order to avoid an administrative and costly tax-filing process and problems with claiming the tax refund from the employee, you can seek approval from the Tax authorities to make a final – annual – (re)calculation of the taxable wage in the payroll administration.

Contact us for assistance in this process.

5. Social security

“A favourable tax position may trigger expensive foreign social security and compliance obligations. We offer an integrated approach for a balanced solution.”

Chaima Chaoui

Employment tax adviser – Loyens & Loeff Employment & Benefits

“EU regulation offers rules to prevent double social insurance for employees working within the EU. However, the jurisprudence from the EU Court of Justice shows that these rules are not as clear as to be expected. When working in multiple EU member states, it may be especially difficult to determine which social security system should apply.

We can help you to assess the current situations and prepare for the future.”

Social security
	What	When	Who
21	Determine in which country the employee is subject to social security and, if required, apply for an A1 or Certificate of Coverage.	Prior to start employment	Employer and employee
22	The employer should check all local payroll obligations in case the employee is subject to a social security system other than the Netherlands.	Prior to start employment	Employer
23	Determine if it is preferable for the employer to be treated as 'own risk bearer' for certain parts of the Dutch social security system, and if so, file a request to that effect with the Dutch Tax Authorities.	Prior to registration as employer	Employer
24	Determine whether the employer prefers to insure the risk of having to continue payment of wages during sickness of his employees (max 104 weeks according to Dutch labour law) with a private insurer.	Prior to registration as employer	Employer

Do we have to pay social security contributions for an employee seconded from abroad?

The basic rule is, that the employee is subject to the social security system of the country in which he works (physical presence), meaning that Dutch contributions will have to be paid. This may be different if he comes from a country for which a bilateral or multilateral social security treaty with the Netherlands is in place. An important multilateral treaty is Regulation (EC) no. 883/2004 (Regulation) which applies to the EU Member States, Switzerland, and the EEA countries Norway, Iceland and Liechtenstein (together referred to as Regulation-countries).

Deviating rules may apply in situations involving the UK. The EU-UK Trade and Cooperation Agreement sets out specific rules on (inter alia) social security coordination. For the major part they are equal to the rules of the Regulation.

Can the employee continue the social security coverage in his home country?

This depends on where he was resident and insured compulsorily for social security prior to coming to the Netherlands. Another factor is where his employer resides. In principle, he will become subject to the Dutch social security system if he works in the Netherlands. However, within the Regulation countries, and if the Netherlands has concluded a social security treaty (also called totalisation agreement) with another country, he may be able to continue the application of his home country social security. This may even be mandatory, based on applicable international rules.

In most cross-border situations where the Regulation or a social security treaty applies, the employee can continue the social security coverage of his home country.

What is the impact of the Regulation for the employee coming from abroad?

Based on the Regulation, the employee may remain subject to the social security legislation of his home country instead of having to join the Dutch schemes, if the following conditions are satisfied:

- the employee was insured under the social security schemes of the sending country
- the employee is a national of one of the Regulation countries (in most Regulation countries, the Regulation also applies to third-country nationals, provided that they reside legally in the EU/EEA and migrate within the EU/EEA)
- the employee remains in the employment of the sending company
- the wages for the work carried out in the Netherlands are borne by the sending company
- the anticipated duration of the duties for which the employee is seconded to the Netherlands does not exceed 24 months
- his employer must have substantial (for employment agencies, habitual) activities in the home country
- the employee is not sent to replace another person who has reached of the maximum term of secondment
- you will not post the employee to work for yet another company.

The Regulation also provides special rules for the situation in which an employee works in more than one country simultaneously. The employee will always be subject to the social security system of one country only. That is his country of residence if that is where he works at least a substantial part of his time (25%). Special rules apply if this test is not met, or in case of cross-border teleworking from home.

If it is in the interest of the employee it is possible to – in mutual consultation between the two countries – deviate from the above rules, e.g. when it is clear beforehand that the duration of the secondment will exceed 24 months. Such approval is usually given when the anticipated duration of the secondment is less than five years.

Try to get a good picture of where, and how frequently, the employee will be working in the various countries to establish which provision of the Regulation applies in his situation.

The Regulation provides specific rules for specific professions, such as employees working on board a vessel at sea or flight crew or cabin crew members performing air passenger or freight services.

Can the employee continue the social security coverage in his home country under a social security treaty?

If the secondment is temporary, most treaties allow the legislation of the sending country to remain applicable. The conditions generally are:

- the employee must be a national of one of the two treaty states
- the home country employment is continued during the posting to the Netherlands
- the salary costs are borne by the home country employer
- the employee was covered by the social security legislation of the sending country immediately prior to the secondment

The period during which the above is allowed in general varies from twelve months to five years. It is advisable to apply for a 'Certificate of Coverage' confirming the applicable legislation. In some treaty states, this (application for a) certificate is actually one of the conditions for the above rules to apply.

The Netherlands has concluded social security treaties with (among other countries): Australia, Bosnia-Herzegovina, Canada (including Quebec), Chili, China, Egypt, India, Israel, Japan, Cape Verde, Channel Islands (Jersey, Guernsey, Alderney, Herm, Jethou), Macedonia, Morocco, Montenegro, New-Zealand, Serbia, Tunisia, Turkey, Uruguay, United Kingdom, United States of America, South Korea.

What if neither the Regulation nor a social security treaty applies?

In general, the Dutch social security system applies in full if the employee is a resident of the Netherlands. If not, there may be an exemption, e.g. if the employee is a non-resident and is working in the Netherlands for a non-Dutch employer for a period of less than six months. In that case, you will not have to pay the employee insurance contributions.

Which contributions must we pay as employer?

The national insurance contributions (AOW, Anw and Wlz) are withheld from the salary of the employee.

The contributions for the employee insurance schemes are fully paid by the employer.

The contributions for the Zvw consist of an income-related part, paid by the employer, and a nominal contribution which the employee needs to pay to an insurance company. This nominal contribution varies per insurance company.

The contributions for the employee insurance schemes (Sickness Benefits Act (ZW); Work and Income according to Earnings Capacity Act (WIA); Unemployment Insurance Act (WW) are fully paid by you. These contributions are determined per type of industry.

All Dutch social security contributions are due over a capped income (adjusted every year). From an employer cost perspective, it may therefore be interesting to explore the possibilities of applying the Dutch social security system instead of the home country schemes. Of course, when looking into this, the level of benefits should be taken into account as well.

How do we pay these contributions to the authorities?

You have to withhold and pay all contributions through a Dutch payroll. You must be registered with the Dutch Tax authorities and file monthly tax returns. Non-Dutch employers may have to register as a withholding entity for the payment of employee insurance contributions only.

Do we need proof to show that the employee is not subject to Dutch social security?

Yes, first of all, the factual circumstances must be clear and must result in an exemption from Dutch social security, based on international rules or Dutch national law. Furthermore, if the Regulation or a social security treaty applies, a document A1 or a Certificate of Coverage must be obtained from the social security authorities of the employee's home country, preferably prior to coming to the Netherlands. He may also need this certificate in order to continue his social security coverage in his home country. You can ask the employee to take care of the application or help him with this process.

In most situations a document A1 or a Certificate of Coverage is mandatory.

What is the social security position of the family members of the employee?

The position of the family members must be checked case by case. If they become residents of the Netherlands, in principle they will be subject to the Dutch national insurance schemes and the Zvw. Should they work under an employment agreement in the Netherlands, they are also covered by the employee insurance schemes.

For Regulation countries, under certain circumstances, the family members are entitled to continue the home-country health care insurance, based on the social security position of the employee.

Under some social security treaties, the family members ‘follow’ the social security of the employee. In that case, if the employee continues to be subject to the social security system of his home country, this also applies to his family members.

Always check the social security position of the family members. In many cases they do not follow the social security position of the employee.

How to treat social security contributions paid abroad in the payroll calculations?

When making your monthly payroll calculations, you have to determine whether employer contributions constitute taxable wage for the employee or not, and whether the employee contributions are tax-deductible or not.

The Dutch Ministry of Finance has issued guidelines on this.

6. Pension

Pension
	What	When	Who
25	It has to be determined whether or not the employees are required to join an industry-wide pension fund. If so, they must be registered with the appropriate fund.	Prior to start employment	Employer
26	Within a month after commencing employment, a written notice has to be given by the employer to the employee, stating whether or not he will offer him to participate in a company pension scheme. If such an offer is made, the employer is responsible to ensure that the employee receives information on the details of the pension scheme (in the form of a so-called 'initial letter')	Notice within 1 month after commencing employment; information about the pension scheme within a period of 3 months.	Employer
27	If a foreign pension scheme remains applicable, it should be assessed whether it is beneficial to have the pension scheme acknowledged by the Dutch tax authorities to gain access to the Dutch tax facilities in view of the contribution payments to be made.	Preferably prior to start employment	Employer and employee

Are we required to offer employees participation in a Dutch pension scheme?

An employer is required to offer the employee participation in a pension scheme if the employment falls within the scope of an industry-wide pension scheme. Almost 80% of all employees in the Netherlands falls within the scope of an industry-wide pension scheme. In case there is no mandatory participation in an industry wide pension scheme, it is market practice for Dutch employers to offer participation in a company pension scheme.

What types of pension schemes are common in the Netherlands?

Both defined benefit schemes and defined contribution schemes are currently common in the Netherlands. However, most new pension schemes are defined contribution schemes.

What is the maximum amount of yearly pension contributions?

The maximum amount depends on the pensionable income of an employee and, in case of defined contribution schemes, the age of an employee.

What to do if seconded employees prefer to continue participation in a pension scheme in their home country?

First of all, you must check whether this is possible based on the foreign pension scheme. Secondly, without an approval from the Dutch Tax authorities there will be no tax facilities available for the contributions paid. You can file an application to have the foreign pension scheme approved as a qualifying pension scheme for Dutch tax purposes. Of course, you should make sure that you and your employee understand all the consequences of a (Dutch tax-favourable) continued participation. Please note that an approval is possible for a limited period only.

Since many aspects play a role when making decisions regarding a pension scheme, this should always be done on an individual basis.

Is the pension contribution paid relevant for the Dutch payroll?

Yes, the employee contributions related to a Dutch pension scheme or a qualifying foreign pension scheme are deductible, and employer's contributions are tax-free for wage withholding tax purposes. Contributions related to a home country pension scheme which is not a qualifying foreign pension scheme in the Netherlands, are not deductible and are taxable, respectively.

Does the 30%-ruling affect the employee's pension?

In principle not, because the 30%-ruling does not affect the amount of pensionable income of an employee. However, the pension scheme must allow this.

A hand holding a magnifying glass over a document with a line graph overlay. The background is a blurred image of a person in a blue shirt. The magnifying glass is held over a document, and a line graph is overlaid on the right side of the image. The graph shows a line that starts at the bottom left and goes up to the top right, with some data points. The text '7. Other aspects to consider' is overlaid on the left side of the image.

7. Other aspects to consider

Some attention points
	What	When	Who
28	Situations in which employees come from abroad and who are not to be employed by the (Dutch) employer require individual checks on the tax and social security position. See Q&A chapter 5 Social security . Furthermore, it needs to be checked whether or not a notification requirement is in place. See Q&A chapter 2 Labour law .	Prior to start employment
29	Manage recurring obligations. If a company sets up business activities in a new jurisdiction, management and employees may be unfamiliar with local rules and regulations. It is important to determine suitable processes to manage local compliance risks in respect of employment tax and legal matters.

Should we inform the employee about other things to consider in view of his transfer to the Netherlands?

We would advise the employee to check the possible impact of his transfer to the Netherlands, among other things, in respect of:

- matrimonial property law and inheritance law
- gift tax and inheritance tax
- Import duties, VAT and excise duties (household goods, (company) car)
- Personal income tax aspects of emigrating to the Netherlands

Employment & Benefits

Our employment & Benefits practice covers the full spectrum of employment and tax issues which employers may have to deal with. We take all issues into account from a tax and legal perspective, which makes our practice unique. Our attorneys and tax advisers are highly aware of each other's areas of expertise and call upon it when needed. As a result, you can always count on clear and complete advice. Complex matters often require know-how that spans related areas of expertise within our firm. In such cases, our attorneys and tax advisers work closely with specialists in other areas of law.

International mobility

Our key areas of advice are employment tax, employment law, international social security and pension. As a fully independent law firm, Loyens & Loeff is excellently positioned to coordinate international tax and legal matters. We have our own network of offices in major financial centres, staffed with specialists in Dutch, Belgian, Luxembourg and Swiss law. Outside these regions, we are on excellent terms with other leading independent law firms and tax consultants.

Loyens & Loeff

As a leading firm, Loyens & Loeff is the logical choice as a legal and tax partner if you do business in or from the Netherlands, Belgium, Luxembourg or Switzerland, our home markets. You can count on personal advice from any of our 900 advisers based in one of our offices in the Benelux and Switzerland or in key financial centres around the world. Thanks to our full-service practice, specific sector experience and thorough understanding of the market, our advisers comprehend exactly what you need.

Authors

Nico van Dijk – Social security

Edith Franssen – Labour law

Jan Bart Schober – Tax

Wendy Terporten – Immigration law

Editor

Jan Bart Schober

All work for Loyens & Loeff

LinkedIn

In charge of employment law or employment tax?

Follow the latest developments on our LinkedIn Employment Team page.

Our offices

Amsterdam

P.O. Box 71170
1008 BD Amsterdam
Parnassusweg 300
1081 LC Amsterdam
The Netherlands
T +31 20 578 57 85

Luxembourg

18-20, rue Edward Steichen
2540 Luxembourg
T +352 46 62 30

Rotterdam

P.O. Box 2888
3000 CW Rotterdam
Blaak 31
3011 GA Rotterdam
The Netherlands
T +31 10 224 62 24

Zurich

Alfred-Escher-Strasse 50
8002 Zurich
Switzerland
T +41 43 434 67 00

Brussels

Tervurenlaan 2
1040 Brussels
Belgium
T +32 2 743 43 43

New York

555 Madison Avenue, 27th Floor
New York, NY 10022
USA
T +1 212 489 06 20

Singapore

80 Raffles Place
14-06 UOB Plaza 1
Singapore 048624
Singapore
T +65 6880 3070

London

15 Austin Friars
London EC2N 2HE
United Kingdom
T +44 20 7826 30 70

Paris

1, Avenue Franklin D. Roosevelt
75008 Paris
France
T +33 1 49 53 91 25

Tokyo

21F, Shin Marunouchi Center Bldg.
1-6-2 Marunouchi
Chiyoda-ku
Tokyo 100-0005
Japan
T +81 3 32 16 73 24

Contact us

Jan Bart Schober

Partner - Tax
Amsterdam

T +31 20 578 54 51

E jan.bart.schober@loyensloeff.com

Klaas Wiersma

Partner - Employment law
Amsterdam

T +31 20 578 59 60

E klaas.wiersma@loyensloeff.com

Nico van Dijk

Adviser social security
and migration law - Rotterdam

T +31 10 224 63 45

E nico.van.dijk@loyensloeff.com

Edith Franssen

Attorney at law
Rotterdam

T +31 10 224 64 53

E edith.franssen@loyensloeff.com

Robin van der Ham

Attorney at law (pension law)
Rotterdam

T +31 10 224 61 31

E robin.van.der.ham@loyensloeff.com

Chaima Chaoui

Tax adviser
Rotterdam

T +31 10 224 64 84

E chaima.chaoui@loyensloeff.com

Ralph Ferouge

Tax adviser
Amsterdam

T +31 20 578 56 01

E ralph.ferouge@loyensloeff.com

Aleid Langevoord

Tax adviser
Rotterdam

T +31 10 224 65 17

E aleid.langevoord@loyensloeff.com

Wendy Terporten

Tax adviser
Rotterdam

T +31 10 224 64 34

E wendy.terporten@loyensloeff.com

© Loyens & Loeff N.V. 2023

All rights reserved. No part of this publication may be reproduced, stored in a retrieval system or in an automated database or disclosed in any form or by any means (electronic, mechanical, photocopy, recording or otherwise) without the prior written permission of Loyens & Loeff N.V. Insofar as it is permitted, pursuant to Section 16b of the Dutch Copyright Act 1912 (Auteurswet 1912) in conjunction with the Decree of June 20, 1974, Dutch Bulletin of Acts and Decrees 351, as most recently amended by the Decree of December 22, 1997, Dutch Bulletin of Acts and Decrees 764 and Section 17 of the Dutch Copyright Act 1912, to make copies of parts of this publication, the compensation stipulated by law must be remitted to Stichting Reprorecht (the Dutch Reprographic Reproduction Rights Foundation, PO Box 3060, 2130 KB Hoofddorp, the Netherlands).

For reproductions of one or more parts of this publication in anthologies, readers or other compilations (Section 16 of the Dutch Copyright Act 1912), please contact the publisher.

This publication does not constitute tax or legal advice and the contents thereof may not be relied upon. Each person should seek advice based on his or her particular circumstances. Although this publication was composed with the greatest possible diligence, Loyens & Loeff N.V. cannot accept liability or responsibility for the results of any actions taken on the basis of this publication without their cooperation, including any errors or omissions.

One Firm: Law & Tax, we are proud of the unique service we offer multinational organisations, financial institutions, investors and High Net-Worth Individuals from our home markets of the Netherlands, Belgium, Luxembourg and Switzerland. With offices in key financial centres and a global partner network, we reach out and support you wherever you need.

As a leading law firm in continental Europe, we have a particular focus on Private Equity & Funds, Real Estate, Life Sciences & Healthcare and Energy & Infrastructure. We integrate tax, civil law and notarial expertise to support you with smart and efficient solutions through advice, transactions and litigation.

As a trusted partner, the best advice is not just about expertise, but also about cultivating an in-depth understanding of your business and finding the best solution for you. This commitment is fundamental to our success.

Join us in going Further. Better. Together.

Amsterdam, Brussels, London, Luxembourg, New York, Paris, Rotterdam, Tokyo, Zurich

loyensloeff.com